Hi Marc

Please see below recommendation and motivation for selecting your services:

Efficient Group as a company is currently growing as an organization and with more businesses being added to the Group from all across the country we are facing additional network and infrastructure challenges. The adoption of cloud based technologies and services has further added to this complex environment and technology plays a critical role in the organizations ability to standardize and streamline many of its business processes. Our company has primarily made use of small, local IT support companies to service the relevant offices, but when viewing these companies in relation to the IT strategy we found that in many areas they lacked in house expertise or strong partner networks to effectively service our business and effectively advise us on relevant technologies and their value for the business. B-Logic offers the depth and service provider relationships we need to implement, maintain and manage a holistic IT Strategy and technology services offering. Their management compliment with large organization experience is one of their strongest selling points for a growing business like ourselves. Their business model also allows us to scale service predictably as our business grows resulting in no loss of service quality or the need for resource planning from our side. Their focus on mid cap organizations also means that they have extensive experience and a broad knowledge of services and products that can add value to our organization while still remaining cost effective and relevant. Their professional and client focused service is also rare in the IT space and is an absolute requirement when looking for an IT partner you can build a relationship with.

Kind regards

Stefan
